

First-aid solutions

Making first aid effective, practical, economical and easy to manage.

Isolated regions present severe risks of infection, but they also present the possibility of a minor accident or injury turning to with unnecessary disruption and cost.

When the nearest doctor may be miles away over rough roads and the nearest hospital perhaps hours or even days, then a simple cut, burn or fracture could prove disastrous.

Avoiding a major incident for your employees and the local workers.

Without swift intervention serious complications can always set in. A life could depend upon it.

First-aid treatment needs to be available in all locations - the car, the office, the construction site or living accommodation - with clear instructions that anyone without medical training can understand. They must also be in a form that can be self-administered.

Everything on hand, from a bandage to a limb-saving splint.

SMI First-aid kits consist of modules, from basic care to more sophisticated treatment. Because they are modular, they can be expanded or combined to meet all requirements under differing conditions. Refill modules are also available to ensure that there is never a shortage of what is needed and that costs are kept to a minimum.

Solutions For Your Good Health

In an emergency, providing quick, thorough first-aid is essential. As users of first-aid kits are not medical professionals, kits need to be complete, well documented, and easy to use.

SMI has developed a system for designing and maintaining first-aid kits that save precious time in an emergency while cutting supply costs.

Modular design for specific first-aid needs

Because each work environment may involve specific health risks, we create our kits according to these risks, grouping the required care modules into a complete kit.

Designed for rapid access

With clear plastic boxes and explicit instructions on the contents of each module, no time is wasted sifting through supplies and so the necessary item for dealing with the emergency is quickly found.

Cost effective, easy refills

By renewing only used modules, commonly used modules such as Basic Care can be renewed several times before more rarely used modules such as Emergency Burn Care are ever opened.

Moreover, based on our experience, expertise and flexibility in refilling kits, we also provide management tools for tracking, follow-up and stock maintenance.

Covering any need, no matter how specific

SMI provides a range of standard kits that cover the typical needs for office, vehicle, or travel use. These kits are designed with the same easy-to-use and refill modular principle.

We also customize kits for a variety of organizations and contexts. These kits range from on-board airline pharmacy kits to individual traveler first-aid.

Personalization

Our products are designed in a way that makes customization quick and affordable. You can include your company logo, your emergency response procedures, or change a few items in our standard kits with minimal lead time and investment. You can also create your own kit, or program of products and information for a complete package to accompany your specific health policy.
